

The issue of fair use was decided in the courts. This issue is not for the FCC to decide. There should be no such "broadcast flag" as this is more of a gift to the media companies and studios than anything that should be decided by the government. How much innovation will the government hold back before the government stalls all innovation altogether?